GUEST ARTIST TO PERFORM WOMEN'S WORKS AT UD RECITAL

DAYTON, Ohio -- Monica Jakuc, pianist and professor of music at Smith College, will perform "Women's Work: A Program of Pieces by Women Composers" at 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 17, at the University of Dayton's Boll Theatre. The recital is free and open to the public.

The program will include works by Elisabeth-Claude Jacquet De La Guerre, Fanny Mendelssohn Hensel, Marianna D'Auenbrugg, Amy Marcy Cheney Beach, Louise Talma and Julia L. Niebergall.

Jakuc, who received her bachelor's and master's degree from the Julliard School, recently opened her London debut recital with a work written especially for her by Ronald Perera. Her repertoire spans 300 years of literature, and she has given successful tours in Japan and Alaska. Jakuc made her U.S. debut recital with J.S. Bach's "Goldberg" variations at Merkin Concert Hall at the Abraham Goodman House.

For more information on the recital, contact the UD music department at 229-3936.
